9 Legislation Relating to the Mentally Ill

Legislation relating to Mentally Ill persons

Parliament has seen fit to provide Victoria Police, and Protective Services Officers in certain situations, the power to apprehend a person for the purpose of having them examined by a registered medical practitioner or assessed by a mental health practitioner (Section 10 of the Mental Health Act). In order for this power to be used, certain criteria must be met, and rules must be followed.

2 What's Different About Youth

Definition of Youth.

A young person's control system is not fully developed. The part of the brain that has direct input to decision making, planning, consequence of action, impulse control and regulation of intense emotion, does not mature in the majority of people until the mid 20's.

VICTORIA POLICE

3 Critical Incident Defined

Incidents that involve death or serious injury in the presence of police are serious matters that can subject police practices and individual members to increased scrutiny.

For the purposes of this policy and to reflect section 85A Police Regulation Act 1958, these matters are known as 'critical incidents' and include incidents involving a member while on duty which:

- result in the death, or serious injury to a person; and
- involve one or more of the following:
 - the discharge of a firearm by the member
 - the use of force by the member
 - the use of a motor vehicle by the member (including as a passenger) in the course of their duties
 - the death of, or serious injury to the person while the person was in the custody of the member.

A serious injury is an injury that is life threatening, is likely to result in permanent impairment, is likely to require long-term rehabilitation, or is, in the opinion of the Chief Commissioner likely to bring Victoria Police into disrepute or diminish public confidence in it.

It is important for members to be aware that critical incident reviews are conducted using the Operational Safety Principles as a template.
